Kamloops B.C.

DEPARTMENT OF LANDS
FOREST BRANCH

PERSONAL

C.D. Orchard, Esq.
Chief Forester
Victoria, B.C.

Dear Dick:

It was several days after my return this week to the office from the field before your personal letter of Nov. 7 was given me; hence the delay in answering.

I am afraid I cannot give you much help in connection with this Bloedel fire, although there are many angles of it which have come up and which may or may not have an influence on your final decision.

I do remember that Conway, Langstroth and Roger Cobb took a speeder along the mainline of the Elk River Lumber Co. and stopped at a point where they could get a clear view of the fire across the lake at about the time the fire was approaching the "peninsula".

The question of whether or not the fire jumped the bay onto the peninsula or was a separate fire, was a very argumentative one during the court case, Bloedels trying to prove it was a separate fire and the Elk River company proving that such was not the case. If I remember the evidence in court correctly, Langstroth, Conway and Cobb maintained that in their opinion the fire was jumping the bay and lighting on a knoll in the peninsula and fires were springing up all over.

I never did see that section of the fire itself except on a map and I cannot recall exactly the extent of the unburned area between the peninsula and the original fire.

I do know however that the fire definitely jumped from somewhere on the peninsula across the lake as I was in that area by myself and fires were lighting all around me.

C.D. Orchard, Esq.

Nov. 15, 1941

I am afraid I can give you no pertinent evidence to prove the case one way or the other but in the event you happen to be up this way could probably give you information during a discussion of the matter which might be of interest. Personally, I am quite satisfied from what took place that it is all one and the same fire and that the contention of Bloedels (which they were unable to prove in court) that there were two separate fires, is not the case. I do not know whether or not you have the maps of the fire which were presented as exhibits in the court case, but they might be very useful in helping you arrive at some final decision. Probably you also may have some of the evidence which centres around this point and if not it might be very useful to you in making your final decision provided you could procure such evidence.

I am afraid I can't give you any further information than this, although, as I said before, I might give you some leads in the event we were discussing this personally, as matters come up during discussion which may have a bearing on the problem.

Yours truly,

CCT:ecm

Dear Sir:

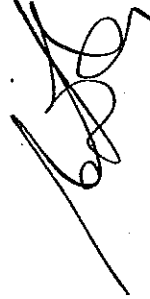

At the time of your last visit to this office, in company with Mr. R.V. Stuart, with regard to your 1938 fire claim, it was agreed that we would make such further enquiries as we could into the merits of your contention that your fire was confined to the Boot Lake-Loveland Lake region and that the remainder of what we have styled the "Bloedel fire" started from an entirely independent source on the "Peninsula".

Since then we have reviewed the details of this part of the fire history with our own officers who were on the ground at the time.

We understand that your two-fire thesis is based on the fact that there are two quite distinct burned areas separated by Deep Bay, Loveland Lake and about half a mile of unburned south east of Loveland Lake, and that there were fishermen and travellers in the region at the time who might reasonably be supposed to have left a camp fire.

Have you anyone in your organization who has first-hand information bearing on this matter, or who could give us further information? If so, we should like to have an opportunity of discussing the question with them before coming to any conclusion.

Yours truly,

C.D. Orchard,
Chief Forester.

Gentlemen:

Replying to your enquiry of even date, we would advise that we consider fire to be one of the greatest single hazards in a logging operation during the so-called fire season, namely May 1st to September 30th. Serious fires sometimes occur even at other times of the year, but the individual risk owing to seasonal conditions is not so great. We consider it is an inherent risk of the business and incidental to the trade, and that the cost of fire-fighting, fire damages and losses of felled and bucked timber, and of fire prevention in such matters as slash disposal, snag falling, and providing adequate equipment and organization, must be deemed a normal cost of operating and be provided for as such.

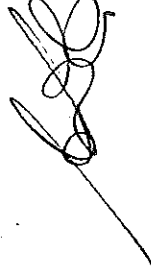

During the fire season, all employees are required to be constantly on the alert and, in addition, special men called spark catchers are put on the job, whose sole duty it is to watch for fires and extinguish them. Many fires are started, as the above precautions indicate, but most are promptly extinguished and the public hear only of the ones that reach serious proportions. If strong winds prevail with low humidity and a fire starts, it is most difficult to get it under control, and sometimes impossible until fire hazard conditions moderate.

Large sums of money are spent each year by the British Columbia Forest Service in forest protection work and, in addition, logging operators, for their own protection and by regulation of the Department, spend large sums for the same purpose. The Forestry Department rigidly insists on the utmost fire precautions as specified in the Act and at all times exercises control and supervision over all logging operations.

Your fire of 1938 was distinguishable from all other industrial fires only in its size and disastrous results attributable to extreme fire weather conditions. The principles are the same regardless of cost and loss. Fires inevitably will occur on logging operations and the cost involved in fire-fighting, fire damages, loss of felled and bucked timber, and in fire prevention measures must be deemed an operating expense which every operator must be prepared to pay.

Yours truly,

CDO/PC
